An exciting new chapter

Message from Mr. Anton Immelman

There are four features that make our school unique. For me, the most significant is our cultural diversity. We are truly representative of our beautiful country, with many cultures represented in our learner and staff body.

The second is our beautiful campus. The park-like surroundings make it an ideal place for teaching and learning. Running through the heart of the campus, the Dorpspruit reminds us of our close relationship to nature. We are blessed with vast green spaces.

Thirdly, our school has a rich history of dedicated, quality educators. Our teaching staff, with a healthy mix of experience and youth in their ranks, is deeply committed to their profession and their pupils. Our excellent Matric pass rate is evidence of the quality education we pride ourselves on.

Finally, our unique positioning

as a combined school means families can find a quality education for their children of all ages and the transition between Primary and High school is seamless. This creates a stable environment for our pupils, where the consistency in ethos and approach to learning creates a firm foundation for a successful school career.

We embrace this new chapter with the full confidence that our school and its rich learning environment is the best place for our pupils to be educated.

Message from Mr. Jan-Hendrik van Tonder

It's been a long journey. Many years and numerous meetings later, our two schools have finally merged - joining forces for the greater good.

This was in the best interests of Gert Maritz and Voortrekker schools, being neighbours on the same campus. A beautiful city-side campus with three schools, serving from Grade RRR to Matric could not continue as it did before. In the spirit of transformation and realizing the demographic changes in Pietermaritzburg, our schools had to adapt.

We are resilient, being the only school in the KwaZulu-Natal Midlands offering both Afrikaans and English as home languages. Riverwood College represents the true South African demography where children from different cultures can play freely, learning from each other and celebrating their diversity. There's much to celebrate at Riverwood College and I look forward to our positive contribution to the City of Choice.

Introducing Riverwood: An exciting new chapter

Sharon Dell

Since August, when the Department of Basic Education approved the merger of Voortrekker High School with its campus cousins Gert Maritz Primary and Siembamba Pre-Primary, a key preoccupation for principal Anton Immelman has been how best to honour the school's legacy.

"Voortrekker has a proud and unique past. Although we are moving into a new era, under a new name, we do not want to negate the school's heritage or erase its history. On the contrary, we want to acknowledge it," says Immelman.

As part of what has been called The Vories Legacy Project, a Legacy Centre and Museum has been established in an expansive wing in the original school building. The centre is already home to a collection of prized memorabilia, including two large portraits of Voortrekker leader Andries Pretorius and a large school crest bearing the motto: Aanhou wen (Keep winning).

"It's a place for school reunions and other gatherings, where people formerly associated with the school can feel welcome," Immelman says. Plans for a reunion to commemorate what would have been the school's centenary in 2027 are already underway.

A carefully-planned Voortrekker closing ceremony took place on 20 October. Nine simulated cannon shots rang out to mark nine decades of the school's existence; the school flag was lowered for the last time and walked across the school's iconic sky bridge – now renamed The Vorie Bridge – into the museum; and an ode to the institution was crafted and recited by long-serving staff member Elmarie Schreuder.

Half celebration, half memorial, the closing ceremony was a moving tribute to a still-proud school that now enters a new era under a brand new name, Riverwood College, chosen by the pupils, staff and current parents of all three schools.

A new identity

"Riverwood College is a new school with an identity that more accurately reflects the values and aspirations of a diverse and modern South Africa," says Immelman.

Although they shared a campus and operated in close proximity, the three schools were previously separate educational entities with their own administrative systems, budgets, rules and entrance requirements. More significantly, perhaps, each had a different history, ethos and identity – all of which have been fiercely guarded, making the job of unification far more than a simple technical matter.

Sporadic merger talks among the three schools pre-date the current terms of both Immelman and Gert Maritz principal Jan Hendrik van Tonder. Both of them, including current Sprouts head Irmarie Van der Westhuizen, saw the financial and practical merits of a more streamlined system. An official application for the amalgamation was finally approved in August.

Van Tonder says the new institution will serve as a "one-stop shop" for learners who can start in Grade RRR and go all the way to matric in the same school.

The school will also be the only combined school in Pietermaritzburg and the KZN Midlands to offer Afrikaans as a first additional language – a unique feature that makes the school an attractive choice for local Afrikaans families and those relocating from provinces beyond KZN.

"This needs to be a new South African school and it needs to stand for the demographics. But it is also still a place where the Afrikaner child can come and is able to speak their language in a classroom," says Van Tonder.

A school which made a statement

Founded in 1927 as a school for Afrikaans-speaking children, Voortrekker flourished as a regional Afrikaans hub. No expense was spared in the construction of the imposing buildings that make up the current Voortrekker High School to which the high school moved in 1949, leaving its primary school behind in the CBD.

"If you look at photos of the school when it opened, you can see it was making a statement," says Immelman. The core of the school was a three-storey edifice on a prime piece of land that stood on the edge of the city.

As the school expanded, an administration wing was built in 1977. "It was state of the art, with underfloor heating and towering columns, linked to the original building through the expansive sky bridge which makes it architecturally unique," he says.

As the Afrikaans population in the city grew, Gert Maritz was established in the mid-1960s in the centre of town. By 1992, however, the city's Afrikaner population had started to decline, and the government ordered Gert Maritz to consolidate its high school with Voortrekker.

In 1997, Gert Maritz Primary School relocated to the Voortrekker campus and opened in the repurposed Voortrekker girls' hostel. Three years later, Siembamba, then an independent pre-primary school, also relocated to the campus.

Introducing English

Despite this consolidation, Afrikaner learner numbers at Voortrekker continued to decline, as some parents opted to send their children to English-medium, often private, schools.

In 2009, a decision was made to turn Voortrekker into a parallel-medium school. The same decision was taken by Gert Maritz in 2014.

In his third year at the helm, in the interests of continued growth, Immelman pushed for even more change: the addition of isiZulu as a first additional language.

A well-hidden gem

Today, of the 740 children in the high school, there are still approximately 120 first-language Afrikaans children and the school has a demographic profile very different to that envisaged by its original founders.

"If you go out now at break time you will see the real South Africa ... I'm proud of that. We are one of the most diverse schools in the city," says Immelman.

That diversity is also one of the strengths of Gert Maritz.

Van Tonder describes the primary school as a "well-hidden gem" that the merger will allow to shine more brightly.

As current principal of Gert Maritz, the son of one of its former principals, and an old boy of both Gert Maritz Primary and Voortrekker High School, Van Tonder says he is excited about what is coming. "I tell the parents who come and interview me: 'If you want your child in an Afrikaans class, here is where you come; there's nowhere else. Dit is die plek.'" their children to English-medium, often private, schools. In 2009, a decision was made to turn Voortrekker into a parallel-medium school. The same

Afrikaans gaan vorentoe

As 'n oud-Vorie (2001-2004) en huidige Afrikaans Huistaalonderwyser (2013-), kan ek met sekerheid sê dat Afrikaans wel behoue by ons splinternuwe Riverwood College (2024-) sal bly. Gegewe die diepgaande en ryke tradisies in verband met die ou Voortrekkerjare, vanaf 1927 tot 2023, sal Afrikaans nog steeds hier voortleef en voortbou vir hulle wat volg en aanhou wen vir die volgende geslagte.

Afrikaans moet wel met moderne neigings en onderstrominge tred hou; dus sal ons Afrikaans aanhou bou en groei soos ons samelewing met die tye verander. Tans bied Riverwood College Afrikaans Huis- en Eerste Addisionele Taal vanaf graad 8 tot 12 aan. Daar is een Huistaalklas en twee Eerste Addisionele Taalklasse per graad, met meer as genoeg geleenthede in die akademiese en kulturele sfeer om met selfvertroue, in Afrikaans, die toekoms aan te pak.

Volgens die Handwoordeboek van die Afrikaanse Taal (HAT) is Afrikaans 'n taal met Nederlands as basis, maar wat onder die invloed van veranderende omstandighede en verskillende uit- en inheemse tale tot 'n onafhanklike taal in Suid-Afrika ontwikkel het. Dus vereenselwig ons Afrikaans, as vak en taal, met die ander kulture en tale in ons nuwe skool om tesame in die toekoms vorentoe te beweeg – as een gemeenskaplike en geïntegreerde skool. Kom ons staan saam as een gemeenskap en beweeg saam vorentoe. Forward. Phambili.

*Net vir interessantheid om die gemeenskaplikheid tussen Afrikaans en Engels uit te wys – ons het meer in gemeen as wat julle dink, hiermee die volgende gedig wat in beide tale gelees kan word:

My Stories Begin As Letters

My pen is my wonderland.
Word water in my hand.
In my pen is wonder ink.
Stories sing. Stories sink.

My stories loop. My stories stop.
My pen is my wonder mop.
Drink letters. Drink my ink.
My pen is blind. My stories blink.

Mag Riverwood College kragtig bly voortvloei en ons sterk bly voortrek soos die Voortrekkers van ouds!

Riverwood College grows from a solid foundation

By Elbe Nixon

New beginnings are exciting and terrifying in equal measure.

During my 20 years of teaching at this school there have been many such beginnings, some personal and some on a broader scale. My teaching career began at Voortrekker High School and in those days it was an Afrikaans medium school only. Changing demographics led to it becoming a dual medium school in 2009. Learner numbers increased and the school continued to provide good results and send well-balanced individuals into the community.

Last year saw the completion of a longer process in the amalgamation of Voortrekker High School and Gert Maritz Primary School. This year sees the much-anticipated launch of Riverwood College. Riverwood College could prove that old adage true, in that the more things change, the more they stay the same. The school buildings are the same, barring maintenance changes and the staff still strives to fulfill their roles as educators.

According to Shakespeare, "A rose by any other name still smells as sweet". Voortrekker High School has been a prominent school in Pietermaritzburg during its 96 years' tenure. Riverwood College grows from this solid foundation. It is a school where learners are taught something new every day. It is a place where learners are encouraged to dream big and to attain their academic, cultural and sporting goals.

This is a wonderful new beginning.

Nurturing the future

Sprouts

RIVERWOOD COLLEGE

In the heart of learning at Riverwood College, a charming phenomenon is taking place – the blossoming of our Sprouts, the Grade RRR to Grade R pupils. These little ones, with their bright eyes and infectious enthusiasm, are the adorable architects of the future, crafting the foundation for their academic journey in the most delightful way. The Sprouts embody the spirit of growth and exploration. Nestled in their corner of the campus, they are the cute factor that infuses joy into the playground and classroom. Their laughter echoes through the campus, and their tiny footsteps leave imprints of curiosity that signal the promise of a thriving educational community. In the Sprouts' world, every toy becomes a tool for learning and each game transforms into a lesson. Their play is a carefully curated curriculum that introduces them to the wonders of language, numbers, and social interaction. Through these activities, the Sprouts seamlessly weave the threads of knowledge, creativity and social skills into the fabric of their education. The teachers at Riverwood College are the gardeners of these young minds, nurturing the Sprouts with patience, kindness and a deep understanding of the importance of early childhood education. Their commitment to creating a vibrant learning atmosphere ensures that the Sprouts not only bloom, but flourish, ready to take on the challenges that lie ahead. As these little ones grow and transition to the higher grades at Riverwood College, they carry with them the seeds of curiosity, resilience and a love of learning.

School spirit overflows with love and inclusivity

Message from the head boy, Vuyo Tshingana

My name is Vuyo Tshingana and as the first headboy of Riverwood College, I am nothing short of honored to have been entrusted with such a role. It is really exciting to be able to lead a completely new school and the transition from Voortrekker High School to Riverwood College provides us with so many opportunities to lead the school into the right direction.

Being headboy this year means I am given the opportunity to showcase my leadership skills and acts of service towards my school. It means working with nobility and integrity to set an example for the learners who look up to me and to be a visual representation of Riverwood College.

I will do my best to honor the new school name.

Thank you

Message from the head girl, Liza Kruger

To be made head girl of your school is an immense honour, but to be the first one at a brand new school makes this honour even more meaningful. I obviously have a lot of sentimental attachment to Voortrekker as well as Gert-Maritz, and it is difficult to close that chapter of rich history. However, we are now in a position where we get to learn from the past, take the many good parts of it and lay the foundation for something that will last for generations to come. This rare opportunity overwhelms me with excitement and I am proud to be part of it.

This school has endless potential and a spirit that overflows with love and inclusivity. I want to ensure that our school's new chapter starts on the highest note and that we will all be proud members of this beautiful, diverse and unique community.

Legacy project to unite old and new

To honour Voortrekker High School and Gert Maritz Primary School, we want to keep Vories and Gerries at the heart of our foundation. With this in mind, we have started the Vories and Gerries Legacy Project. The project is intended to keep the old and the new together. We hope to establish a rich community of old boys and old girls that will uphold the memories and history of the two schools while embracing and supporting Riverwood College. The legacy centre will hold an official opening later this year as Old Vories and Gerries unite to support their schools' history. An entire museum has been dedicated to Voortrekker and Gert Maritz to keep cherished memories and memorabilia safe. We hope it will become a living space, where old Vories and Gerries can hold reunions and celebrate special occasions. Riverwood College strives to maintain a healthy and happy relationship with the community that moulded the foundation that we now build our school on. Forward, Vorentoe, Phambili.
